INVITATION: THE ROBO FARMER ON THE INDOOR FIELD - GLOBAL FOOD SUMMIT 2020 IN MUNICH: FOODTROPOLIS. URBAN. CIRCULAR. FARMING

Dear Sirs,

Are you interested in the future of our food?
In how artificial intelligence (AI), climate change and increasing urbanization influence the cultivation and production?

You want to know whether organic food can only come from the field, or also, and with less CO2 footprint, from urban vertical farms?

Are you curious about how we will reduce food waste when around 80 percent of all food is consumed in cities in 2030?

You are familiar with precision farming and wonder whether robotic bees will also be used to pollinate flowers in the future?

Do you also see the recycling of food as an opportunity to conserve resources and achieve the UN Sustainability Goals for 2030? You want to know how waste products and by-product streams will be processed in the future?

Then we cordially invite you to the Global Food Summit 2020 from 24 – 26 March 2020 in the Munich Residence.

We will give the future of food a voice and discuss sustainable food management. With international scientists from Berkeley, Wageningen, the TUM and the Leibniz Institute, and many others. With start-up delegations from Israel, Bangladesh and the Netherlands.

With politicians and associations from Singapore, China, Canada, the USA, Australia and Germany.

On our Global Panel with representatives of the FAO, the OECD, the World Food Programme (WFP) and the World Economic Forum (WEF) from Davos.

Enclosed you will find the link to the preliminary program schedule: www.globalfoodsummit.com

Please accredit yourself for the whole conference under the following e-mail address: presse@globalfoodsummit.com

→ If you would like to attend the joint dinner on 25 March 2020 at the „brenner München“, please make a note in your mail. This will incur costs of 65,- EUR p.p.
